ACKNOWLEDGEMENT FORM – REPRESENTATION BY AN AGENT IN PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THE WARDEN

Procedures and Timeframes

A party appearing before the Warden may have, if not self-represented, either a solicitor (person who is a lawyer) or an agent (person who is not a lawyer) represent them. The party must lodge and serve notice of that representation as soon as practicable before the first hearing at which the lawyer or agent will represent the party. A party does not need to obtain the leave of the warden to be represented by an agent in the initial stage of proceedings (mention hearings). However, a party will be required to apply for the leave of the warden for exceptional circumstances to be represented by an agent at an interlocutory or substantive hearing. Such leave must be sought at least 14 days before the first hearing at which it is intended the agent will represent the party. If the warden gives a party leave to be represented by an agent, the party must then lodge and serve notice of that representation as soon as practicable before the first hearing at which the agent will represent the party.

Differences between a solicitor and an agent

Services offered by solicitors include:

- legal professional skills and expertise;
- protection afforded by legal professional privilege over communications with their client;
- confidentiality over those communications is generally guaranteed;
- accountability to the Court and to their professional bodies;
- binding codes of professional conduct and ethics, which include the duty to avoid conflicts of interest;
- the maintenance of professional indemnity insurance for any potential liability claims made against them by their clients; and
- regulation as to the manner and form of costs disclosures, and the requirement to hold trust accounts.

Before deciding to be represented by an agent, a party should give careful consideration to:

- The suitability, skill and experience of the agent.
- Whether the agent has professional indemnity insurance cover when representing clients before the Warden, and consider whether compensation can be sought if serious errors are made by the agent and what responsibility that the agent has to accept for the outcome of the proceedings.
- If costs are awarded against the unsuccessful party, the agent's fees of the successful party cannot be recovered from the unsuccessful party.
